I have a special keychain. It is special for me because I received it as a gift from my best friend. He bought it in Jakarta last year when he was attending a job training and kept it until he returned to our town. He bought two keychains with different characters of superhero on them and asked me to choose one of them.

The superhero character on my favorite keychain is The Flash. The size of the keychain is about 6 cm. The character is in chibi version. Chibi is a Japanese slang word which means "short". The word is now used to address the cute version of something. So I believe that you can imagine the appearance of The Flash character on my keychain which is more like little kid flash. It is made of metal. The back side is black and the front side is colorful. The dominant color is red, just like the suit of The Flash. The color of the eyes is black and the color of the shoes is yellow. There is a yellow lightning bolt on the chest.

12. What is the topic of the text?
  - A. The writer's best friend.
  - B. The writer's superhero.
  - C. The writer's keychain.
  - D. The writer's flash.
13. From the text, we know that the keychain ....
  - A. is recommended and suitable for all little kids
  - B. has a chibi version character of a superhero
  - C. has two different superhero characters on it
  - D. is given by the writer to his/her friend
14. The first paragraph tells us about ....
  - A. the place where the writer bought the keychain
  - B. the way the writer got the keychain
  - C. the keychain chosen by the writer
  - D. the ornament on the keychain
15. "It is made of metal." (paragraph two)
What does the word "it" in that sentence refer to?
  - A. The flash character
  - B. The special keychain
  - C. The little keychain
  - D. The chibi character

Hero of The Day

This story happened three days ago. At that moment I was hanging out with my friends in shopping malls. We were about to go to the cinema, when suddenly I heard a child was crying.

I looked around me but I saw no one. When I walked for about five steps, I looked to the left and I saw a little girl was standing in front of an escalator. I tried to approach her and asked her why she was crying. She said nothing but her eyes stared downstairs. I stood up and looked downstairs, it was her mother trying so hard running on an escalator to go upstairs to get the little girl. But it was a useless effort because she didn't realize that she was actually running upstairs on an escalator which went downstairs. I believe it was because she was so nervous at the moment and the only thing she was thinking was to get to her little girl as soon as possible.

I made a quick decision right away. I hold the hand of the little girl gently and said "come on, come with me, I will take you to your mom". She said nothing but she opened up her arms to me so that I could hug her and carry her on my chest. I said from upstairs to her mom, "Don't worry, I'll get her to you.", and then I stepped on the escalators and walked down as fast as I could and gave the little girl to her mother. Her mother was so happy that she didn't say anything but smiled to me. I smiled to her too and said, "Everything is okay now".

16. The text tells as about the writer's experience in ...
  - A. hanging out with his friends in a shopping mall.
  - B. finding out a crying little girl in a shopping mall.
  - C. helping a mom to find her child.
  - D. helping a mom who wants to go downstairs.
17. The mother just smiled to the writer and did not say anything because she ....
  - A. felt that everything was okay that time
  - B. felt very happy as she could get her child
  - C. thought that the writer was an unkind person
  - D. felt embarrassed that she had missed her child
18. What did the writer do when he/she knew that the mother was so nervous?
  - A. Took the girl to the mother.
  - B. Helped the mother went upstairs.
  - C. Put the girl on the writer's back.
  - D. Escorted the mother to the girl.
19. "She said nothing but her eyes stared downstairs." (paragraph two)
The underlined word can be best replaced with ....
  - A. looked at
  - B. looked for
  - C. walked out
  - D. watched out

Kiluan Bay

Kiluan Bay is a tourist attraction which is located in Kiluan village, Kelumbayan subdistrict, Tanggamus district, South Lampung. Kiluan Bay is about 80 kilometres from Bandar Lampung city centre or three to four hours if you go there by car. This is the place of migration for pods of bottlenose dolphins.

This bay has stunning natural landscape and coast. The sand beach which is spreading out there is white and gentle. It is quite harmonious with the blue colour of the sea. Beside swimming and snorkeling, in this bay you can also see the attractions from a group of dolphins. The attractions of a group of dolphins usually performed around 6 to 10 in the morning. However, to watch the attractions you must first rent a small boat or Jukung.

By using the small boat or Jukung, you will be brought to the middle of the sea where the dolphins gather. It takes around twenty five minutes from the coast. From close distance, you can see a pod of dolphins which swim and even jump on the side of the coming boat as if they welcome your coming.

The text is for questions 28 to 30.

A star is a luminous ball of gas, mostly hydrogen and helium, held together by its own gravity. Nuclear fusion reactions in its core support the star against gravity and produce photons and heat, as well as small amounts of heavier elements. The Sun is the closest star to Earth.

According to current star formation theory, stars are born as clumps within gigantic gas clouds that collapse in on themselves. The cloud's material heats up as it falls inward under the force of its own gravity.

When the gas reaches about 10 million K (18 million °F), hydrogen nuclei begin to fuse into helium nuclei, and the star is born. Energy from nuclear fusion radiates outward from the center of the burgeoning star, and gradually halts the gas cloud's collapse.

A star's color relies on its temperature: hotter stars emit bluer light and cooler stars emit redder light. Temperature is also correlated to mass. Red dwarf stars have as little as 0.075 solar masses and a visible surface temperature less than 4,000 K. The most massive star known is R136a1, a Wolf-Rayet star 265 times the Sun's mass - its visible surface temperature hovers at a searing 50,000 K.

The most massive (and hottest) stars exhaust their energy supply within a few million years, while tiny and cool red dwarf stars can keep on burning for many billions of years.

(Taken from: <https://www.skyandtelescope.com/astronomy-resources/what-is-a-star/>)

28. By reading the text, the readers will ....
- A. be informed about what stars are, their formation and types
  - B. be aware of the process of star formation in universe
  - C. get general knowledge about space objects
  - D. know more about the characteristics of stars
29. What kind of stars that keep on burning for billions of years?
- A. The most massive stars.
  - B. The red and hottest stars.
  - C. The tiny and cool stars.
  - D. The small and cool red stars.

30. "... stars are born as clumps within gigantic gas clouds that collapse in on themselves." (par 3 line 1). The underlined word has closest in meaning to ....
- A. team
  - B. crowd
  - C. flocks
  - D. groups

The Lion's Whisker

Once upon a time, there lived a young husband and wife in a small village in Africa. Both of them now had not been happy of their marriage. The man began to come home late from working in the fields. His wife thought he was the most wonderful man, but not now. Finally, she went to the oldest man in her village for help. However, he asked if she could bring a single whisker taken from a living lion to make the potion work. The young wife's eyes widened in alarm. "I'll get it for you," she nodded.

The next morning, the young wife carried a huge piece of raw meat to invite lion's coming closer. Behind the tree she saw the lion sniffed at the raw meat. In three bites, the meat was gone. He knew she was there. The mighty lion moved slowly back into the forest and disappeared. This continued for many times. At the end of four weeks, she moved quietly next to the lion and sat silently while he ate. Her hand shaking, she reached slowly out and pulled a whisker from his chin. Holding her prize firmly in one hand, she sat frozen until the lion had disappeared back into the forest.

She ran to the old man, waving her whisker. "I have it," she shouted. "You do not need magic to change your husband back into the loving man he once was. You are brave enough to pull a whisker from the chin of a living lion. It took cleverness and bravery to do what you have done. Can you use that same patience and courage and wit with your husband?" "But the potion," the young wife said eagerly. "Would not that work as well?" "Perhaps," the elder told her. "But it would not last. Trust me, my child. Show your husband each day that you love him. Share his problems. Make him feel welcome. Make him feel wanted and needed. Give him time to change and see what happens." The young wife went home and followed the elder's advice. Slowly, her husband began to return from the fields with the other men of the village. He began to look glad to see her. Within a year, their life was a happy one.

Clever Jackal Gets Away

One day long ago, Jackal was trotting through a narrow, rocky pass. As he often did, he kept his nose to the ground as he ambled along, to catch the odd scent. Suddenly he was aware of a movement ahead of him in the pass. "Oh, no!" Jackal moaned and stopped dead-still in his tracks. Jackal was filled with fear. He had played so many tricks on the great Bhubesi in the past, he was sure that lion would take this opportunity to get his revenge. In a flash Jackal thought of a plan.

"Help! Help!" cried Jackal. He cowered down on the cliff path, looking above at the rocks. Lion stopped short in surprise. "Help!" Jackal howled, using the fear he felt in the middle of his chest to accentuate his cry. Jackal glanced up at Bhubesi. "Oh, great Nkosi! Help! There is no time to lose! See those great rocks above us? They are about to fall! We shall both be crushed to death!!!! Oh, mighty Lion, do something! Save us!" And Jackal cowered even lower, his paws covering his head.

Lion looked up, most alarmed. Before he even had a chance to think, Jackal was begging him to use his strength to hold up the overhanging rock. So the Lion put his brawny shoulder to the rock and heaved. "Oh, thank you, great King!" yelped Jackal. "I will quickly fetch that log over there to prop under the rock, and we will both be saved!" With that Jackal bounded out of sight.

Lion was left all alone to struggle under the weight of the unmoving rock. How long he remained there before he realized that it was another trick, we will never know. But this much we do know: Jackal continued to live by his wits!

A Frightening Experience

On a chilly winter night, I and my best friend Bob Steinauer were driving on a freeway that was covered in a thin plane of ice. To make matters worse I was drunk. Bob had warned me not to drink too much but as usual I ignored his warning.

As I was driving, the beer started to take effect, somehow I reset the dizziness effects until we were about halfway home. As I was halfway in a sharp right turn just about to exit the freeway, I saw a flash of light streak past my left eye. Seconds later, there was a defeating explosion. The darkness seemed to recede as I slowly regained consciousness. Suddenly there was a roaring fire and I immediately unbuckled my seat belt, wanting to get out as soon as possible.

Somehow I got out the car. Bob was gone. He had been catapulted nearly fifteen feet from where the car was. As I stood by his side, I realized that his injuries were far worse than my own. Even if medical help could arrive it was far too late, he would be dead before he reached the hospital. "Nicholas, tell my parents that I love them and my sister too. And one last thing, if you ever get the chance told her everything that I told you on that day". Bob said with his last breath. "I will" I promised him, holding back tears.

Bob's funeral was a grand one even by the standards of kings. His parents and not only them but a great deal of his classmates cried as his coffin was lowered into the ground to be entombed forever beneath the earth. As the funeral came to a close him, I left unable to take anymore. Although he is dead, Bob's memory will forever live on in our hearts.

- A. The car turned sharp left unsuccessfully.
  - B. Nickolas' car machine suddenly exploded.
  - C. A fast flash came to Nickolas' eye that he could see nothing.
  - D. Nickolas lost control while driving because of his dizziness.

40. What does paragraph 2 talk about?
- Nickolas drank much beer inspite of Bob's advice
  - Nickolas and Bob got an accident on a freeway
  - Bob suggested Nickolas not to drink much
  - Bob asked Nickolas to stop driving
41. "The darkness seemed to recede as I slowly regained consciousness." (paragraph 2)

The text is for questions 44 to 47.

Do you know that a giraffe may grow more than six metres tall? Yes, the giraffe is a very tall animal. In fact, it is the tallest animal in the world.

A giraffe has a very long neck. Unfortunately, the giraffe cannot bend its neck easily. Thus, when it wants to drink water at a pool, the giraffe has to spread its front legs apart, so it can reach the water.

A giraffe feeds on plant only. Hence, it can reach the leaves on trees easily because of its height. Also, a giraffe has a very long tongue - about 0.5 metres long. The giraffe uses this long tongue skillfully to pick leaves off plants and trees.

This tall animal can protect itself very well. It has a very good sense of smell and sight. It can hear very well, too. Finally, it can gallop very fast - at a speed of 50 km.p.h.

The giraffe's hind legs and long neck are also very useful. For example, a giraffe can kick its enemy with its hind legs or even hit out with its long neck.

44. What does the text tell us about?
- A. The giraffe's habits.
  - B. The general facts of giraffe.
  - C. The way of breeding giraffe.
